

Get Hooked on Books!

Sandpaper Letters

Cut letters out of sandpaper. Make them about three inches tall, so your child can play with them, feel their contours, and learn about letterforms. You can also make touch-friendly letters out of foam sheets from the craft store, felt, play-dough, or corrugated cardboard. Encourage your child to touch the letters, play with them, and explore the alphabet.

Fun with Letters

Magnetic Letters

Your child can use inexpensive alphabet magnets to spell his or her name and the names of other important people in his or her life. Focus on one letter each day and spell words that begin or end with that letter. Introduce a “new word of the day” and talk about its meaning. Spell simple messages for your child to read.

Name Games

Find as many ways as you can think of to play with the sounds and letters of your child’s name. Help your child find the letters of his or her name in the collection of letter cutouts or letter magnets. Help them write each letter and hear the sound it makes in their name.

Information from Every Child Ready to Read, a project of the Association for Library Service to Children and the Public Library Association, divisions of the American Library Association.

Our favorite books were:

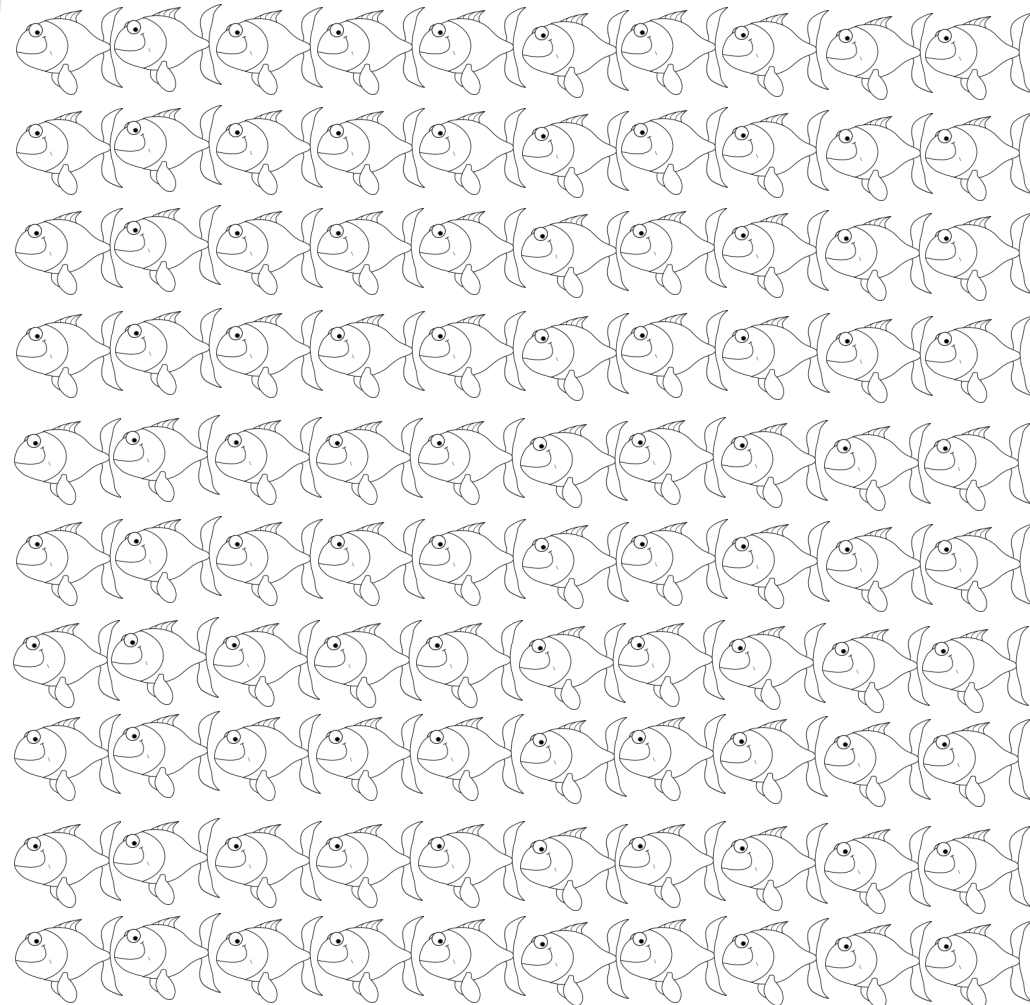

1. _____
2. _____
3. _____

Hook a Reader!

Books 701 through 800!

For each book that is read to your child by anyone, color or check off one fish.

Congratulations! You have read 800 books!!! Return this page to the Woodward Memorial Library for a sticker and your next reading log.